When we were children, many of our parents told us classic stories of life back in "the good old days." We learned of traditions. A time when football heroes and sports cars were popular. A time when button-down shirts, sailor suits, Cheenos or pleated skirts were virtually the campus dress code. A time when fraternities and sororities enjoyed an unusual popularity. A time of traditions.

Mansfield

Mansfield

Yet when we came to Eastern, we found a way of life much like that of our parents stories of the past. We found a never-never land full of Saturday afternoon football games, convertibles, blue oxford button-downs and lasting friendships. Our college years were years of Classic Traditions.

Classic traditions. Perhaps it was the University's conservative values that helped preserve them. Because of its traditional beliefs, the University's durability and maturity were often confused with being unprogressive. We didn't live in co-ed dorms or have beer on the menu in the grill, but we did exist in an environment where we could live and grow as individuals.

It is a paradox that the University's conservative image actually feed off of the ever changing individuality of its students and staff. Tradition survived well on campus because of the inner strength of the students.

Wallbaum

Thompson

From the outside we appeared to be a homogenious group bound by tradition. Yet upon closer examination we found a diverse collection of individuals, each one inheriting his or her own beliefs and attitudes as the year progressed.

Thompson

Mansfield

And as the year progressed, we grew closer to the natural beauty of the campus. We were by no means the first to walk through the ravine on a fall day, or sit by Stratton pond at sunset, yet by doing so we added a continuity to our lives. The continuity of tradition.

Mansfield

Nothing was laced with more tradition here on campus than the University's social life. For it was our college social life that lessened the strain from those all night cram sessions, term papers, and final exams. Things just wouldn't have been the same without Saturday afternoons on "the hill," midnight munchie runs, floor parties, road trips, Ma Kelleys and, of course, downtown.

Despite its' reputation as a "suitcase campus," the University provided an excellent opportunity to live and learn outside of the classroom. Between the numerous greek games, Student Association activities, and campus movies, we all found something other than studying to help occupy our time here between freshman orientation and the long awaited graduation day.

Always a tradition oriented school, the University held on to customs considered stale by others. Practices such as R.O.T.C. and homecoming passed the test of time and continued to prosper year after year. Much like the activities conceived within it, the University continued to grow and advance, with each new year bringing a different group of students to live and grow in its' traditions.

OH EASTERN, MY BEAUTIFUL EASTERN, I WAS
ALL ELSE WAS EMPTY EARTH.

SIXTY MAIDS AND MEN BEFORE ME, SOME ON THY DOORSTEPS FROM EARLY MORN, EACH ONE EAGER TO KNOW AND LOVE THEE ON THE DAY THAT YOU WERE BORN.

IN THE EARLY DAYS OF EASTERN, WHEN COINS
WERE SCARCE AND TIMES WERE TOUGH, YOUR STANDARDS HIGH, YOU TAUGHT US THE BEST IS HARDLY GOOD ENOUGH.

Student Life

Student Life at Eastern means different things to different people. The term "Student Life" is as broad as the campus itself. But a student who first sets foot on campus as a freshman immediately sets out to find just what his or her life is going to be like. And what they find in their four years is as diverse as the students themselves.

In 1983, Student Life on campus encompassed a wide variety of activities and events. Some, though meaningless to some students, were worth more than any amount of money in memories to others. Rush parties, intramural sports, clubs, and even late night pizzas left lasting impressions on the minds of University students.

One such event was the EKU-Murray State football game, the first night game at Eastern since 1968. Spirit rose to a new high, as Eastern prepared for the nationally televised game. The new computer registration system brought students some relief from the long lines of registrations past, and .38 Special appeared, courtesy of the EKU Centerboard.

Some less glamorous events also left impressions on the minds of University students. Late night "cramming" for a big exam, long hours of research in the library, and those dreaded eight o'clock classes that you knew you could never get up for.

And, of course, who could forget those crazy, wild, Thursday nights downtown, and wondering if you'd ever be able to get out of bed again.

The purpose of this section of the book is to capture those precious moments that are to be preserved and savoured, now and for years to come. They are memories to be cherished. They are memories of Student Life.

REGISTRATION ENTERS THE COMPUTER ERA

When 20 year-old Debra Addison, a junior from Booneville, went through registration for the spring semester, in a sense, she began a new era — the era of the computer. Addison was the first student to register through the University's new computer registration system for the spring semester.

Through the new system, students no longer had to face long lines, bulging packets, and running all over campus to collect class cards. Under the new system, what originally took hours to complete was reduced to only 10 minutes, and the hectic atmosphere of Alumni Coliseum was eliminated.

One major change was the elimination of the packet and class cards. In their place, students received a Demographic Data Form, containing pre-printed information about the student. The form is one of the items, along with a signed trial schedule form, required for entrance to the Registration Center in Room 219 of the Combs Building.

Students were also no longer penalized for having mid-term deficiencies. Everyone, regardless of his academic standing, could register, under the new system.

The length of registration also changed from the traditional one week period, to a longer time span — from Nov. 1 to Dec. 18. A three-day registration was also held in January, primarily for new students. Also, for the first time, instructors were not listed in the Schedule of Classes Bulletin. Students had to go to the various academic offices in order to find out which instructor taught which course. The Bulletin itself was arranged by alphabetical order rather than by colleges, as in the past.

For students, the most welcome change was the shorter waiting time and shorter lines. Since students registered in specified time slots according to their classification and last names, waiting periods to register were considerably less. About 700 students could be registered each day under the new system.

Dr. Joseph Schwendeman, dean of undergraduate studies, said that the new system is really quite simple. "Students who have been around for awhile may find that these changes cause problems the first time they register. For newer students, adjustment should be much easier," he said. Schwendeman said that there was little doubt that the new system would make registration "smoother and easier for all concerned."

Let's Get Metaphysical

"Hey, look down there!"

"What's that guy doing?"

"I think he's preaching, but it doesn't sound like any sermon I've ever heard before."

"Yea, and just listen to those guys over there; they're laughing at him."

"I think I've heard of him — yea, that's Jed Smock. Somebody said he just travels around the country with a girl as his sidekick trying to get college kids to repent from their wicked ways of sex, drugs, and rock-n-roll."

"Come on, we better get going to class."

LET'S GET PHYSICAL

The Body Shop, in the University Shopping Center, is a favorite hangout for weight lifters such as Bradley Taylor, an Owsley Co. native and Bert Turner from Dayton, Ohio. Photo by Mansfield.

Olivia Newton-John probably wasn't thinking about EKU when her song hit the charts in the summer of 1982, but students, young and old, chose to "let their bodies talk" in many different ways this year as a physical fitness craze swept the campus community.

Weight lifting, once confined to football locker rooms, found its way into the lives of many university students. Barbells and benches were common furniture in many dorm rooms. Weight rooms in Richmond found themselves packed to the rafters with fitness-crazed people. Women, as well as men, began to see the benefits of lifting and became common sights in many gyms and weight rooms.

If weight lifting wasn't your bag, perhaps jogging was more your speed. If so, the Varsity Track was always swarming with friendly faces with which you could sweat, strain, and trade complaints. Jogging seemed to be a national past-time, and when the weather got too bad, the Begley Building track provided a haven for those who were determined to lose those few extra pounds.

Joggers take their sport very seriously. In order for jogging to be effective, one had to run . . .

. . . and run. photos by Thompson.

The racquet sports also made a resurgence on the fitness scene in '83. One often had to stand in line to get a racquetball court and the various tennis courts across campus were seldom empty unless rain had temporarily postponed the match.

So, in '83, muscles strained, sweat poured, and pounds fell off as Eastern joined the physical fitness craze that swept the nation. Though the time and energy it took didn't seem worth it to some, those who took the time and exerted the energy found the results most rewarding.

Arthur Miller's

"ALL MY SONS"

An impressive cast, an exceptional set, and an explosive plot were just a few of the highlights of the EKU Theatre Department's first production, Arthur Miller's "All My Sons."

The play took place in Iowa, during the post-World War II years, in the backyard of the Keller family home. With the war over, one of the Keller's sons failed to return and the family attempts to cope with the realization that he may never return. The plot built until the climax in the second act, when the truth about the incident of the son's death was exposed, leaving the audience in Gifford Theatre spellbound.

The set remained constant throughout the play. It consisted of the back of the Keller house on stage, complete with porch swing and live plants in the window boxes. The back-drop of the stage changed color dramatically during the course of the play, creating the effect of change in the time of day.

The cast itself was a superb blend of actors who lent themselves totally to their characters. Marshall Crawford played Joe Keller, head of the family and father to the missing boy, who tried, unsuccessfully to hide his darkened past from his remaining son. Monica Roberts portrayed Ann Deever, widow of the soldier, who finds herself caught between her love for the Kellers and her loyalty to her own family. Chris Keller, the youngest son, was played by Jordon Hines. He was torn between the love of his family and love of Ann, his brother's widowed wife. Even 7-year old Ryan Fields was strong as a neighborhood kid.

The strongest and most convincing character was the mother, Kate, played by Carol Ann Cornett. As the focal point of the play, Kate refuses to believe that her son is dead, and nervously awaits his eventual return. Cornett's emotion-charged portrayal of a mother cherishing the memories of her son, left the audience gasping at the close of the play.

Big band music from the 1940's played between acts carried the audience back in time with the characters and added to the post-war spirit of the play.

"All My Sons" entered and won first place in the Kentucky Theatre Association Play Festival in Lexington in November, making them the Kentucky representative to the American College Theatre Festival later in the year.

The play was directed by Dr. Jay Fields

sometimes fun; maybe work; always experience

For many University students, working becomes a fact of life before graduation. According to Herb Vescio, Director of Financial Aid, the University is employing 1400 students on the College Work Study program and 750 students for Institutional work in 1982.

Vescio comments, "Eastern appears unique in student job placement in that our Student Employment office is run similar to a personnel office: we try to place students in jobs that relate to their major."

Whether for practical experience or financial assistance, work is reality for these 2,150 students. Juggling work and study responsibilities demands a delicate balance of time and a mature attitude: often, a lot to ask. The following seven students work for the University for a collage of different reasons, but they have one thing in common — they are successful at both their work and study. How do they do it? Read on . . . .

"Inspecting the girls' dorms gets a little hairy sometimes, especially when my escort leaves me standing in the hall by myself. One time when this happened, a girl stood in the hall, holding the phone in her hand, threatening to call Security. They just don't realize I'm only there to inspect the fire extinguishers — nothing more," Greg said.

And that's just what he's there for. Greg Stapleton is an active Institutional worker in the Fire Extinguisher lab, located in the Stratton building.

Being little known, but a vital part of campus life, the lab inspects and services 700-800 fire extinguishers a year for the University. Greg comments, "The lab has progressed a long way since I first began to work in it three years ago. We did have a small, unorganized room; now we have a real lab and the quality of our work is just about to the point where we can guarantee service within 24 hours after a report, at half the commercial cost."

As a Fire Prevention and Control major, Greg finds working in the lab rewarding because, "of the practical experience and the added responsibility we've assumed. I've also enjoyed getting the new people settled into the work scheme."

"We're a unique lab in that the lab is completely student run. We do our own inventory and report any items needed to Ron Hopkins, our supervisor. If we run out of anything, it's our fault," said Greg.

Greg and the lab team maintain and repair the breathing apparatus and air tanks used by the University in fire drill programs, and as a public service, they maintain the air tanks for the Richmond City and Madison County fire departments and the Madison County Rescue Squad.

Greg came to the University four years ago, from Carlisle, Pennsylvania, because of the reputable Fire Prevention program.

"The highlight of it all is giving away flowers to pretty girls," says freshman Gregory Thompson, who works in the A.B. Carter greenhouse as part of his 7 hour a week College Work Study assignment, and he hands me a gorgeous, fragrant, white mum.

With the scent of mums, roses and daisies filling the air of the greenhouse, Gregory says he basically "spot waters, fertilizes and weeds the plants." Also, when absolutely necessary, Gregory cuts the orchard's grass behind the greenhouse, which, as he puts it, "makes your feet smell and my two roommates don't appreciate that too much."

Gregory says the University is a terrific place, but he is less satisfied with his job, saying, "It's hard to find the time . . . I've got to budget it. It's a long walk to the A.B. Carter building from Mattox, and I'd rather be doing something more along the line of my major — Computer Science."

Next year Gregory plans to find a job that compliments his major better. "Possibly a Co-Op job where I can work with computers," he said.

This is Gregory's first semester at the University; he graduated from Lincoln County High School, in Stanford, Kentucky.

Organization is the key to James Meade's success as Medical Technology Lab assistant. "I have a full day, so I have to use my time wisely. It's not hard," says James.

Working ten hours a week on the College Work Study program, James is responsible for keeping the lab and equipment clean and in good working order. Not such an easy task, since the lab serves approximately 100 students a week. Keeping the shelves stocked with chemicals, glassware and lab material, adds to James' responsibility. Laughing, he adds, "Oh, and I clean test tubes . . . lots of test tubes!"

This being James' third and last semester as lab assistant for the Medical Technology lab, he says, "I learned quite a bit that will help me after I graduate, mainly how a lot of lab equipment is assembled."

James will begin his five-month internship at Good Samaritan Hospital, in Lexington, this Spring.

James transferred to the University two years ago from Somerset Community College, because, he says, "I like the University's Medical Technology program."

Long, lean and tall, Larry Greenwell's speech matches his presence. As a farmer, with three acres of tobacco awaiting him at home in Bardstown, he takes working on the University's farm and at Stateland Dairy in stride.

Larry works nine hours Institutional work a week, dividing his time between hay, silage, tobacco, and 50 Holsteins. "I like working with everything on the farm," Larry says, "but I don't like the cows — and the cows don't like me."

Despite the obvious dislike between Larry and the cows, at 3 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and every other Friday, he faces 50 big-eyed Holsteins anxiously awaiting to be milked or fed.

The rest of his time is spent on farm maintenance or at caring for the crops in season. "When we harvest the crops," says Larry, "what goods we don't use on the farm are sold on the public market."

Larry is also active in several organizations on campus: Phi Beta Lambda, a business organization, the Agriculture Club, and Circle K, a service organization active in the Richmond community.

Anyone coming into the Financial Aid office during the past five years has probably seen and possibly dealt with, always smiling, Betty Bogie.

Betty began working in the office in 1977 as a full-time file clerk and worked her way up in the next four years to Senior Secretary.

Last January, Betty quit working at the office full-time and began working thirteen hours a week on the College Work Study Program. Betty explains, "I'd been around students for four years; I thought I could better myself by going back to school and I already knew how to apply for financial aid," she adds with a laugh.

Betty now attends the University full-time as a Data Processing major.

"It's very enjoyable to have a job and the responsibility that goes along with it," says Cindy Jeffries, who, for the past seven semesters, has worked closely with Mr. Charles Hay in preserving the history of Richmond citizens and the University for the Archives, located in the Cammack building.

During her seven hours a week Institutional work assignment, Cindy prepares, organizes, and indexes materials donated for preservation in the Archives. "When I get the material, I first process it by dividing it into related categories, then I put the categories in chronological order, and type an index. After that, everything is type set and bound," Cindy said.

"The Archives is an excellent place for research. Papers from Presidents, all the University's football films, old photographs, even all the Milestones from way back to the beginning are there," Cindy adds with a big laugh.

Cindy graduates in May with a degree in Management and Marketing. She feels working on the Archives material has been a side activity, unrelated to her major, but quickly adds that it's been very interesting.

Energy radiates from every inch of Paula Jory, Special Populations Coordinator for the Richmond Parks and Recreation Department. Working officially ten hours a week on the College Work Study program, Paula plans activities for three outreach programs that touch the lives of many Richmond citizens. I say "officially" because Paula's job involves many more hours than ten, volunteered enthusiastically by Paula.

"I do it for the experience — that's what makes it good for me," says Paula.

"When I first started, three semesters ago, every day brought something new for me to learn. Now, I come up with my own programs and have the director approve them."

Paula's programs include recreation, crafts, exercise, and an occasional party when the season warrants, and a concert when the talent is willing. She and two fellow Work Study students take the programs to Willis Manor, a home for senior citizens, the Second Street Senior Citizen's Center, and MARC, a workshop for mentally retarded adults.

Paula graduates in December with a degree in Recreation and Park Administration. She came to the University in 1981 as a transfer student from a community college in Flint, Michigan.

"NOTHIN LIKE COMIN DOWN TOWN TO GET AWAY FROM IT ALL!!"

After a long week of classes, studying for exams, and racking their brains over term papers, students needed a time to relax and enjoy. They needed a place to listen to good music and dance, and a place to drink beer and meet members of the opposite sex. In all cases, the place to be on Thursday nights was

DOWNTOWN

It's Thursday afternoon and the week is nearly over. You only have one class on Friday, you've finally finished that paper you've been working on all semester, and what is there to do? For most students, the answer to this question was "go downtown." Thursday nights in downtown Richmond became as traditional as winning football teams and the changing of seasons. On Thursday nights, quaint, quiet Richmond became a sea of EKU students, as they descended on the downtown bars in search of fun, and freedom from the hassles of college life.

But what motivates them? What force draws literally thousands of students away from their studies, to the hot, smokey, and often crowded confines of J. Sutter's Mill, 1980's, O'Riley's, and the Family Dog. Perhaps it was the need to escape the tedium and monotony of university life, to forget about professors and exams, and just relax and have fun. Anyone who has ever spent a Thursday night downtown knows that a certain feeling hangs dominant in the air — a sense of freedom and ease, a relaxing quality that lets a person cut loose and enjoy.

The majority of students will tell you that going downtown is more of a tradition than habit. It is a time for meeting people and making friends, especially those of the opposite sex. There is an almost electric atmosphere in the air — a feeling that a week's worth of tension is being released. Who really knows when, or if, going downtown became a popular experience, but it has, nevertheless, became a big part of college life at Eastern, as well as neighboring universities.

EKU downtown became the hotspot destination for students from UK, Georgetown, and Berea. For them, it was just another "road trip" full of fun and excitement, or just a change of pace.

Many of the bars themselves got caught up in the rush and sometimes bent the rules just a bit. With the legal drinking age of 21 in Kentucky, several Richmond bars were cited for selling alcohol to minors. Students as well as the establishments themselves, often were responsible for the citations, by the use of fake ID's or other forged identification. Drinking was just another part of the continuing process, that has become common among university students.

So why then, do students go downtown? What motivates them? Drinking? Music? Companionship? Whatever the reason, they went, and on Thursday nights, the streets of downtown Richmond became a haven for many. Some got drunk. Some found whatever it was they were looking for, and some didn't. But still they came. And so, the tradition continues. And you can bet, come rain or shine, that on Thursday nights, it will continue to remain so, for years to come.

"It's Miller time," and these University students relax and enjoy the atmosphere at 1890's while Dotty Smith draws a pitcher.

RIGHT: First Street appears deserted during the morning hours. At night, however, it comes alive with parties and people out for a good time.

Happy hour provides many students with some "fun in the afternoon." Drinks are cheap and the crowd is good for those who begin the night early.

The best of life
is but intoxication."

THE UNIVERSITY CENTERBOARD PRESENTS

.38 SPECIAL

On Tuesday, October 19, 1982, at 8 p.m., the University Centerboard presented its first concert of the year: .38 Special, with special guest, Spys.

Virtually unknown, Spys provided much entertainment as they stirred the audience to its feet with their new hit single, "Don't Run My Life." During the 45 minute show, Spys kept the crowd fired up with songs like "Hold On," "Ice Age," and "She Don't Talk Back."

After a relatively short intermission, .38 Special opened with their hit single, "Hold On Loosely." During the concert, the group performed various songs from their two albums: "Wild-Eyed Southern Boys," the 23rd best-selling LP of 1981, according to Billboard Magazine, and "Special Forces," their most recent. After a ten minute break, .38 Special returned to perform "Rockin' Into the Night." Their fine performance left at least half the audience begging for more.

Although the turnout was low, the concert was a success with the crowd that was present.

Getting In Step With Fashion . . . Traditionally

From preppy to punk, and Calvins to cowboys, fashions could best be classified as diverse in the fall of '82. With the traditional "college look" leading the way, fashions ranged from the short mini skirt, to the full-length prairie skirt, and from corduroy jackets to silk blouses. But basically, fashions brought back memories and looks from an era long passed.

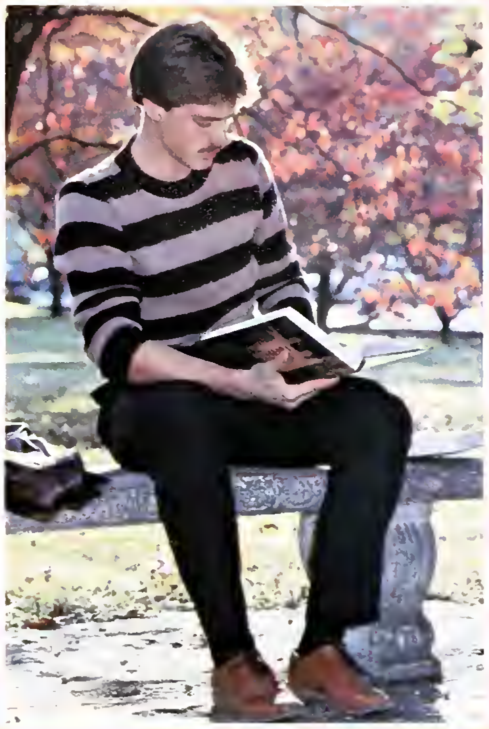
By the fall of 1982, fashions, like the economy, had become more conservative. The look of the year brought back scenes from the 1920's and 30's, with its wool, pin-striped suits for men and its short, one-piece dresses for women. In fact, according to fashion experts, wool was the fabric of the year in both women's and men's fashions.

On the women's scene, black was the predominant color, with purple a close second. Blouses were ruffled and trimmed with lace for wear with suits. Suits were popular wear with blazers and jackets. The classic oxford button-down shirt rode the tide from last year and pumps were the most popular in footwear. Heels were generally lower and the western-styled boots were on the way out.

Lisa Robinson models a long-sleeve blouse with a high collar and purple calf-length pants. Purple, according to fashion experts, is a popular color this season.

Like the women, button-down oxford shirts were once again popular in menswear. And, like the women, wool was a popular fabric for suits and sweaters. Ski sweaters teamed with sports coats to carry the male gender through the autumn months and into winter. French cuffs and cuff links began to make a come back, as did the bow tie, and thin, wool neckties carried over from the year before. Men's shoes ranged mostly to the loafer and slip-on styles, with the classic "cowboy boot" still hanging in.

In short, it was a year of classics. Clean, tailored looks pushed out the baggy, cluttered look of the past and the heavy, bulking layering disappeared. If the hands of time could be turned back, our ancestors of fifty years ago would be proud.



The casual look for fall in menswear consists of multicolored ski sweaters and corduroy pants. This combination is both dressy and casual and is appropriate for any occasion.

Homecoming 1982: The Day That Almost Wasn't

October 9th dawned bleak and rainy, putting a damper on the already soggy spirit of the occasion. With Homecoming having been moved back two weeks to accommodate the change in the Murray State game to Thursday night, the administration feared lack of student participation, since Homecoming fell on a three-day, Columbus Day weekend.

Following its theme, Color My World, the Homecoming activities began on Thursday night with a pep rally at which the cheerleaders tried to fire up the crowd for the game on Saturday. Friday night was the Homecoming dance. With the Nickle Blues Band providing the music, and Lambda Sigma providing the decorations, the 15 Queen finalists were presented to the audience in the Keen Johnson Ballroom.

Saturday morning, amidst a steady rain, the Homecoming parade made its way down Lancaster Avenue and Main Street, with the 15 Queen candidates, marching bands, cheerleaders, and many colorful, but soggy, floats. The first unit in the parade was the runners who made up the 5000 meter run.

Later, in pre-game ceremonies, Suzanne Fawbush, a senior from London, Kentucky, was crowned 1982 Homecoming Queen before a rain-soaked crowd of 17,700 at Hanger Field.

When finally the sun peaked from behind the clouds, it saw the Colonels soak the visiting Middle Tennessee Blue Raiders by a score of 35 to 10, to keep their record perfect at five wins against no losses, and sent the alumni home happy. After the game, receptions were held honoring the classes of 1972 and 1977.

So, despite the rain and the many trials of the day, the spirit of Homecoming shone through and provided a festive atmosphere that only homecomings can provide.

1982 Homecoming Queen

Suzanne Fawbush

Lambert

What started out as a cool, rainy, Saturday morning, turned into a day of excitement for Suzanne Fawbush, as she was crowned 1982 Homecoming Queen, during pre-game ceremonies of the EKU-Middle Tennessee game on October 9.

Sponsored by Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, Suzanne is a senior from London, Kentucky, majoring in Marketing. She serves as the vice-president of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority, vice-president of Sigma Tau Pi business honorary, and a member of Order of Omega, a Greek honorary. In her spare time, she enjoys water skiing, camping and football.

Though the day started out dreary, by game time the sun was shining and provided a perfect setting for the crowning of the new Queen. Suzanne said that the day was "very exciting." "It was unreal," she said. "It's the kind of thing you always dream will happen, and did."

Suzanne was escorted by Mr. Kurt Netherton.

. . . a classic tradition

Barbara Streisand once sang, "People who need people are the luckiest people in the world." Nothing is more traditional, at any University, than its people. From the president, to the maintenance workers, to the students, it is the people that make up the University, and the people that the University was created for.

In years to come, when students look back on their college years, it is the people that they will remember. For, though events create moments, people create memories, and without memories, life is just a dull, listless story. Memories create happiness, and that is what life is all about.

Those crisp, autumn Saturday afternoons meant one thing to most students at Eastern, and that was football. When the Colonels took the field for a pre-game warm-up, they were greeted by the enthusiastic support of hundreds of fellow students who made the journey to Hanger Field to cheer on their favorite team. Some students came to the game to enjoy some good football action. Some came just to be seen. Some came to drink in the beauty of a cool, autumn, central Kentucky afternoon. Others came just to drink. Some wore the traditional maroon and white, while others wore almost nothing. Some even created their own styles. But, come rain or shine, they were there to encourage the Colonels to defeat the dreaded rival. Often the show in the stands was nearly as good as the show on the field. Whatever the reason for being there, Hanger Field was the place to be on Saturday in '82.

A Christmas Tradition

As the decorating of the tree signifies a traditional Christmas at home, so the Hanging of the Greens signifies a traditional Christmas at the University. So to open the season, the Hanging of the Greens was presented on Sunday, December 12, at Walnut Hall of the Keen Johnson Building. Approximately 70 people, including speakers, musicians, singers, and university President J. C. Powell, participated in this year's ceremony.

Dr. William Paulsell, dean of the Lexington Theological Seminary, delivered the Christmas message, which was followed by the singing of "Joy to the World," the traditional Christmas song. Joseph Cloker, president of Sigma Nu fraternity, closed the 53rd annual Hanging of the Greens with the benediction.

Decorating dorm lobbies and rooms with trees and lights, made Christmas at the University seem more like home. Even though Christmas was not a white one, the students didn't let that stand in the way of a memorable Christmas season.

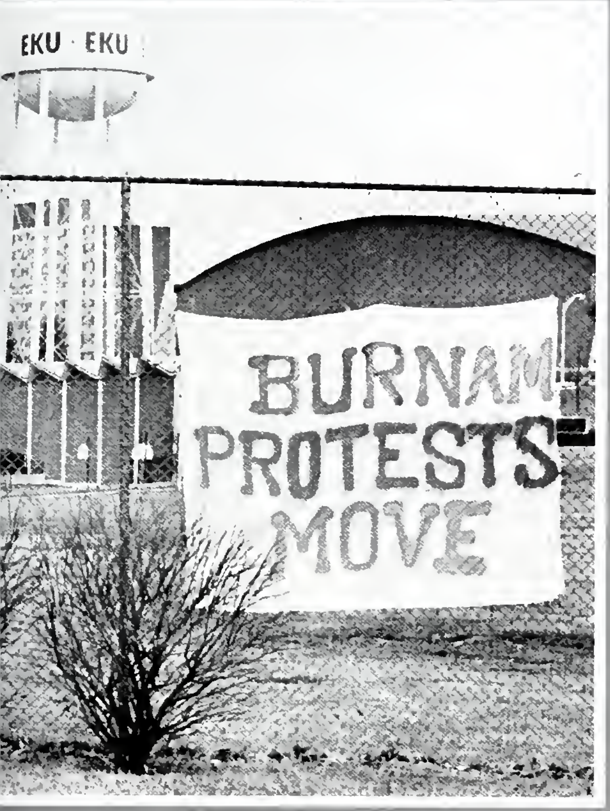
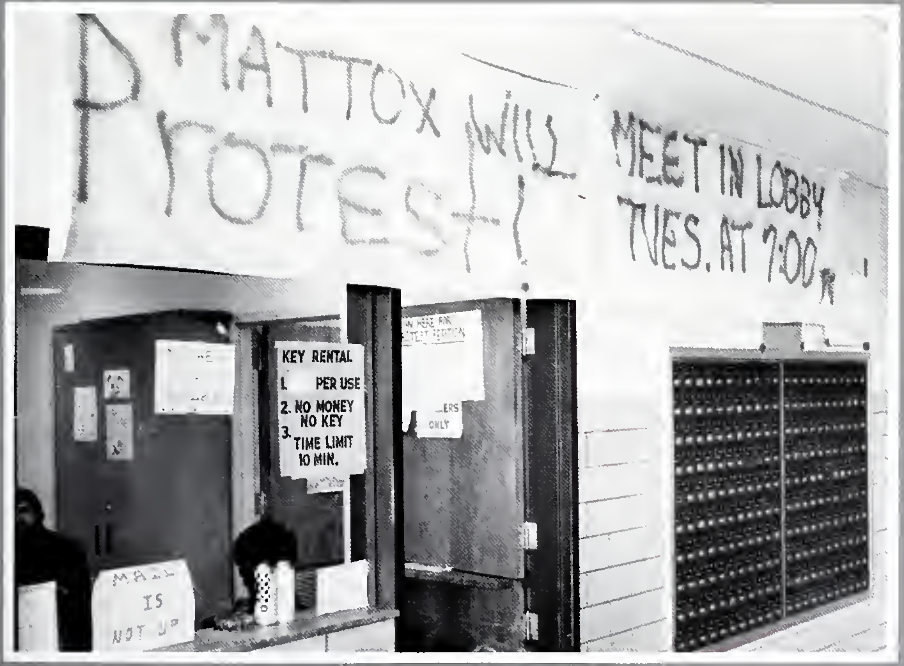
MOVE



The Move. At first it sounds like the plot from a James Bond movie, or a science fiction story. But, for the residents of Mattox and the north wing of Burnam Halls, it was all too real. When they returned to campus from Christmas break, the 162 residents of Mattox and 117 residents of Burnam found that their dorms would be closed and that they would be forced to move. The men and women formed a protest group to try and halt the closings, to no avail. The girls of Burnam were distributed throughout the rest of the dorm, and Mattox residents were absorbed in other men's dorms.

The Move is just one of the problems caused by the University's decreasing enrollment in 1982-83. Several dorms found themselves nearly half empty, and tripling was no longer in existence. Private rooms became more and more common as students left school to pursue other interests. Clay Hall cafeteria was also closed in the spring semester because of lack of student involvement. The decreased enrollment was partially attributed to a decrease in funds, and the current economic conditions of the nation. It was just another sign of the troubled times in which we live.



Staff and residents of Mattox Hall plan a protest meeting to attempt to halt the closing of their dorm. Their efforts were fruitless as nearly 162 men were relocated and the dorm closed in January. Photo by Thompson.

Life's Seasons

Life is like the seasons
  Each one its changes bring.
A fertile seed takes root and grows
  Thus youth is like the Spring.
Maturity comes in Summer
  As we work and play and sing,
In the Fall we gather harvest
  From the deeds we sowed, and then,
Alas too soon it's Winter
  And our eyes have grown quite dim,
Have faith no need to worry
  'Tis not the end of everything
For our souls will be returned again
  To Heaven, where God is King.

Love in the Afternoon

ABOVE: "Like sands through the hourglass, so are the days of our lives," says the introduction to one of daytime's more popular soaps. BELOW: These Telford Hall coeds gather around the TV to watch their favorite soap.

Daytime television, or "soaps," as they are more commonly known, have come a long way since their modest beginnings in the early 1950's. Today, nearly 30 million people turn in everyday to see if Luke and Holly will finally get together, or if the Salem Strangler will be caught.

"General Hospital" continued to be the most popular soap in '83, with "All My Children," "Days of Our Lives," and "Guiding Light," a close second. Although the majority of the watchers were women (nearly 70 percent), men soon found that daytime drama had it's good points too.

Soap opera addicts are frequently the most loyal fans on TV, and college students are no exception. Some even went so far as to plan their schedules around their favorite soap. The large screen in the Powell Building was a favorite spot to share the trials and tribulations of daytime drama. The TV lounge was frequently filled in the prime afternoon hours of 1-4 o'clock everyday.

Nighttime drama such as "Dallas," "Knot's Landing," and "Dynasty" also gained popularity and drew in a large hunk of the nighttime ratings.

Mansfield

College students are notorious at speaking what is on their minds. Like our counterparts of the 60's, we are not afraid, rather we have a deep need to express ourselves on every subject from football to sex, and from the state of the economy to the food in the grill. In recent years, expression has come to mean a sort of defiance — telling the world that "I am who I am, and my opinion counts." At the University, this is done in many ways, especially on clothing. Custom shirts, caps, pins, bumper stickers, posters and license plates have been hot sellers the past few years, especially to the younger market. The University Bookstore, for example, has produced over 13,000 pins over the last four years, mostly football oriented. It has also custom lettered over 10,000 shirts in the past year, according to one bookstore employee.

Whatever you need to express — do it. There are unlimited ways to do it. You might make up your own medium. Who knows, it might even become a fad.

UNIVERSITY LECTURE SERIES PRESENTS
Chris Carlson . . .

Bailey

Chris Carlson was 24-years old when he was lured into Reverend Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church, by several young women he met in San Francisco. He spent the next 18 months traveling around the city looking for donations and recruiting new members. "I thought I was joining an organization of very caring people," said Carlson. "As it turned out, I was transformed into a fundraising and recruiting machine." When his parents realized what was happening, they had him kidnapped and "deprogrammed."

Carlson has spent the last three years traveling around the country, speaking on college campuses about the evils of "brainwashing" types of religion. His lecture in Brock Auditorium on February 10 included a 50-minute documentary, "Moonchild," a reenactment of his joining and leaving, the Unification Church.

Yolanda King, oldest daughter of the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. presented, "What Happens to the Dream Deferred," on February 9, 1983, in Brock Auditorium.

Miss King, who was 12 years old when her father was assassinated in 1968, has been involved in the struggle for human rights nearly all her life. In her appearances on college campuses, she stated that "students are feeling frustrated and have removed themselves from a struggle in which they should still be partaking. We should pull together and work toward a common goal." The Reagan Administration, she said, has deferred her father's dream more so than any other. "President Reagan is enacting his assault on working people in general, no matter what color they are."

Miss King, who got her master's degree in theater from New York University, is currently co-artistic director of Nucleus, a New York City company of performing artists that speak to young people about the struggles of growing into adulthood. She is also the coordinator of the Cultural Institute of the Martin Luther King, Jr. Center for Non-Violent Social Change.

Her presentation included poetry and dramatic monologues, as well as other unique stylings. Her acting credits include several television films including King and Death of A Profit.

Lambert

During her lecture, Miss King urged all Blacks to "pull together and work toward a common goal. Unless we are moving toward bringing 'the dream' about, it will never happen."

Conquering the Late-Night Munchies

Kuchle

They await silently in the dark caverns of your mind (or stomach). They creep up on you when you least expect it — usually in class or in the shower. They attack your entire system and won't let you rest until they've taken over your helpless body. The only weapon against them is a Big Mac, fries and a large shake, or a Domino's Pizza — with extra cheese. They are the "munchies," and many a student has fallen prey to their growling and grumbling pangs.

Late-night seems to be the most succeptable time for munchies attacks, but not always. Many times, students have awaken in the middle of the night, in a cold sweat, fresh from a nightmarish meal of twinkies and a Dr. Pepper, or a giant bag of Doritos.

But, thanks to the generous help of such local connoisseurs as Wendy's, Burger King and Archies Pizza, students can fight the munchies at their own game. Many students have been known to utter a sigh of relief as they gulp down an Arby's Beef 'N Cheddar and a large RC Cola or a bucket of chicken from KFC.

And for those dessert-minded individuals, Baskin-Robbins offers 31 flavors, guaranteed to satisfy even the pickiest eater. And how many dorm directors have awaken in the morning to find an empty vending machine where, the night before, a fully stocked one stood.

Commuters

The Silent Minority

They awake early in the morning to eat breakfast and get dressed. They go out into the cold to scrape ice from their windshields and struggle to start their cars on frosty mornings. After arriving on campus, they must face the endless task of searching for a parking space. They are the commuters — those students who live at home or in off-campus apartments — and they are often the most overlooked group on campus.

While most University students are still asleep, commuting students are up trying to start their cars and preparing for the sometimes long journey to school. For some, coming to school means traveling from as far away as Lexington, Winchester, or Lancaster. They are faced with limited parking spaces, long days and traffic jams. They are often left out of campus activities because they are unaware of such events. Gasoline costs and detours are just a few of the problems faced by these courageous pioneers.

There is a good side to living at home, however. Home cooking, peace and quiet, and, as one coed stated, "You don't ever have to stand in line for the shower." Amen to that.

After 4 Years of Study, Sacrifice and Work . . .

What Now?

"How do you spell relief?"

Many of the 1,400 degree candidates may have answered this question, "G-R-A-D-U-A-T-I-O-N," as they marched to Hanger Field for Eastern Kentucky University's 75th spring commencement.

On this commencement day, which marked the third consecutive year for an outdoor ceremony, Al Smith, newspaper owner/ publisher and co-chairman of the soon-to-be terminated Appalachian Regional Commission, told the candidates and an audience of 10,000 that although these are not the best of times, they are not the worst. "You may not be as cunning as the quick child who survived the mean streets of the urban ghetto, but you have come to graduation today with a sense of yourself and others and an awareness of 'place' — geographical, historical, and human, that is counted by most Americans as a blessing," he said.

Finally, the relief of not having eight o'clock classes, annoying fire alarms, and constant loud music, had all come into sight. Yet, there were still times that the graduate would always treasure: pizza parties, going downtown on Thursday nights, jogging with a best friend, or the friendships that were made during the time at the University. Years after the long-awaited graduation, the graduates will cherish memories of the time they spent — growing, laughing and learning.

LEFT: Looking for that special someone in the crowd, graduation is a time of sharing with friends and family. Not since 1968 had EKU played football at night, but in 1982, they played twice, winning both times. And, being on national television added incentive and gave the nation a chance to see the Colonel's . . .

When football fans look back over the Colonel's 1982 season, many memories will stand out in their minds. A second national championship, an Ohio Valley Conference trophy and an undefeated season were just a few of the accomplishments of Coach Roy Kidd and his team. But as exciting as they were, few games will stand out in the minds of the fans as much as October 28 and December 4 — the "Nights the Lights Came On In Richmond."

Prior to October 28 (a come-from-behind victory over Murray State, 21-20), football at EKU had traditionally been played on Saturday afternoons. The last night game was in 1968, at old Hanger Stadium, which the Colonels won, defeating East Tennessee, 23-20.

The Murray game was carried live by Ted Turner's WTBS,TV in Atlanta, and broadcast to some 22 million viewers nation-wide. An added attraction was the portable lighting system brought in especially for the game by Musco Lighting Ltd. of Oskaloosa, Iowa.

As early as Monday before the game, students began to prepare for the event and the enthusiasm climaxed on Wednesday night as approximately 1500 people filled Alumni Colesium for a pep rally that was taped, to be shown in pre-game exclusive by WTBS sportscasters Bob Neal and Alan Page. After the rally, the crowd marched to Hanger Field to watch the team as it practiced under the lights.

On Thursday night, a crowd of 18,100 filled the stadium to see the Colonels play on national television. They were treated to an exciting finish as the team came from behind, then held off a Murray rally that ended with a Gus Parks interception in the end zone. The crowd was the 14th largest ever to see a game at Hanger Field.

Later, on December 4, Musco returned to campus with WTBS for another night game, this time a Division I-AA playoff game against the University of Idaho Vandals. Again, they were treated to a close game as the Colonels won a high-scoring contest 38-30. A controversial interception by Anthony Jones in the closing seconds ended the Vandal's threat and preserved the victory. It was an especially sweet victory for Coach Kidd as it fell on his 51st birthday. A crowd of 10,893 saw the team win their second night game of the season and advance to the national semi-finals against Tennessee State.

Who knows when, if ever, the Colonels will play again at night and on national television? But for two very special nights in 1982, that combination produced magic in the eyes of the fans. On those nights, the lights did come on in Richmond, and put another bright spot on the already shining season.

WTBS-TV was greeted by many colorful and original signs at the EKU-Murray State game. This one puns Ted Turner, the station's owner.

The Making Of A Champion

Mansfield

The sun had splashed streaks of orange and blue across the western sky on this late summer night.

Lighting bugs flirted here and there. They decorated the scene like blinking lights on a Christmas tree.

The work whistle had long since clocked out. Happy hour had come and gone. Class rooms were empty; downtown was full. The day was just about spent.

But there, at a remote corner of the campus, tucked in behind Telford Hall and a cemetery, secluded from campus and reality, was coach Roy Kidd and his team of destiny.

Arms crossed. Eyes sterned. Mind intense. Kidd was squeezing the last drop of energy out of the sun and out of his players.

The only sound now was grunts and groans; the crashing of bodies and egos; the yelps of coaches.

It was the last of two-a-day work outs — what hell week is to fraternity pledges. It was the turning of 60 some-odd boys into men. It was the making of a champion.

"Looking back at this team and seeing now what we've seen, you could tell this team knew what it took. They did whatever it took to be a champion," says Kidd.

"It's kind of funny, but after three years in a row (of going to the national championship), these kids just knew what it took. And they were willing to do whatever it took.

You could tell that from the first day of two-a-days to the last. They gave it all. They knew they had to, to be the best. Whenever this team had a challenge, it came through.

Mansfield

A lot of coaches wouldn't believe us, 'Why does Eastern win all the close ones?' they would say. Most of them called us lucky. But there's another reason. This team worked. This team knew what it took in effort. This team knew how to win.

"They may not have been the most talented team in the history of the school, but they worked at being the best. And they got more out of their talent than any other group."

The 1982 Colonels may not have been born to be a champion. When you look at them, they weren't any bigger than previous Colonel teams; they weren't any faster thany previous Colonel teams; they weren't more experienced than other Colonel teams. Talent wise, they were no better than other Colonel teams.

But when you look at them in the end, they became the best Colonel team. Ever. Period. End of discussion.

Thirteen games. Thirteen wins.

Ohio Valley Conference Champions.

Nummm-berrr One in the nation. Nummm-berrr One in your hearts.

But still the question begs to be answered, by the fans, by so many coaches who want to know the secret. By the 13 coaches who really thought they should have beaten this team.

Why? If they weren't so great physically, if they didn't have great talented athletes, if they weren't gifted with all the ingredients, what made this team unbeatable? What made them so damn good?

It is simple.

They wanted to be champions. They believed they were champions. Because they MADE themselves champions.

It all started in the first game of the season.

Before you could say "Kickoff" the Colonels were behind South Carolina State — a playoff team — 14-0. With less than two minutes left, the Colonels were still behind and dangerously close to losing its opener for the first time since 1978 — the last time the Colonels didn't go to a Championship game.

The Colonels, who managed just 229 yards of total offense and only 20 yards rushing to that point, were trailing by two points, and to make it worse, South Carolina State had the ball.

Suddenly it was make or break time. Already. The test of this football team had come. Already. Fate wanted to know if this team was cut of the same maroon and white cloth as the last three teams. Already.

The answer came.

First, defensive end Allen Young swooped in and blocked a punt to give the Colonels the ball at the South Carolina State 23-yard line with about a minute to play.

Then Kidd ran the clock down to 33 seconds and sent in place-kicker Jamie Lovett. Lovett's kick looked ugly. It swooned and bobbled and limped along. But it cleared the uprights. It gave the Colonels a 29-19 victory.

It was the making of a champion.

Then came Western, a place where the Colonels hadn't won since 1966. A jinx? A hex? A loss?

Nope. Without a co-starting fullback who had quit, without a co-starting fullback who was injured, and with a freshman fullback who had been given a crash course in the mechanics of blocking. The game ended Eastern 35, Western 21.

It was the making of a champion.

Five days later, it was Murray in the first night game ever at the new Hanger Stadium.

With 4:50 to go, the Colonels had the ball at their 37-yard line and trailed by six points. Sixty-three yards, three fourth down conversions, four big pass completions, a Lovett extra point, and 4:36 later, the Colonels had won.

It was the making of a champion.

Then came the playoffs, A controversial interception in the wanning seconds stopped Idaho. A one-yard touchdown run by Nicky Yeast on fourth down beat Tennessee State.

It was the making of a champion.

Finally, it was the championship. Finally, it was Delaware. No love lost.

Early in the game, Delaware lined up for a chip-shot field goal. As the snap floated back, Gus Parks floated in. The kick. The block.

Defensive end Richard Bell, waiting in the wings, scooped it up. With a broken hand, with an aching pulled hamstring, with a heart as big as Texas, he ran. He ran until it felt like his leg was going to fall off and then he ran some more. He ran until he reached the end zone.

It was the play that made the Colonels champions. It was the making of a champion.

"There's a bunch of people out there saying, 'they could have, and they should have,' " said one Colonel coach. "But there's only one team that has the championship trophy. And that's us."

"You can say what you want about these kids, but there's one thing you must say, 'they're champions.' ".

They weren't supposed to do well this year. It was supposed to be someone else's year. That didn't stop the Colonel's this year as they captured their second national title with a 17-14 victory over Delaware in the Pioneer Bowl in Wichita Falls, Texas.

The Colonels' success can be attributed to many things. They had talent and good coaching. The consensus, however, was their ability to make the big play.

The big play had been a mainstay of the Colonels all season. It began in the opening game of the season when Jamie Lovett converted a 42-yard field goal with 36 seconds remaining in the game.

The kick gave the Colonels a narrow 20-19 victory over South Carolina State.

Leading 13-10 with 13:54 remaining against Akron, Tuck Woolum took the snap at his own 28-yard line, faked a handoff and dropped into the pocket. As Steve Bird was streaking down the middle of the field, Woolum let loose a spiral that hit Bird in stride as he glided in for the touchdown.

Against Austin Peay, the 'big plays' continued. Tony James took an APSU punt at his own 12 and sprinted 88 yards for a touchdown. It was the longest punt return in Colonel history.

The Colonels topped arch-rival Western 35-21 at Bowling Green. The two teams fought their usual tough battle before the Colonels came away with the win. The victory marked the first win for Eastern at Bowling Green in 16 years.

The Colonels got win number seven against Murray State in a nationally-televised game on station WTBS. Trailing 20-14, the Colonels drove 63 yards and hit a six-yard touchdown pass with 14 seconds remaining in the game.

The Colonels topped Idaho in the opening round of the playoffs. Leading 38-30 in the fourth quarter, Anthony Jones intercepted a pass at the Idaho 12 with 40 seconds left in the game.

The University of Delaware Blue Hens were threatening to score with just under 10 minutes left in the first half of the Pioneer Bowl for the NCAA Division 1-AA Football Championship in Wichita Falls, Texas.

The Blue Hens, who had just dropped a touchdown pass in the end zone, were preparing for a 31-yard field goal.

On the snap, Gus Parks zoomed in from the left side. As the ball was put on the tee for Delaware's kick, Parks drove with arms outstretched. As the kicker's foot hit the ball, Parks blocked it. The ball bounced into the hands of Colonel defensive end, Richard Bell. Bell took the ball and ran untouched for a 77-yard touchdown.

Jaimie Lovett converted the extra point to make it 7-0 Colonels. They never looked back enroute to a 17-14 championship victory. It was the Colonels' second title in the last four years.

The play was typical of the season. Like so many times last year, the Colonels flirted with danger only to squeak by in the end.

"I think this might have been a team of destiny," said Head Coach Roy Kidd. "Whatever it took, this team gave. They put all of themselves into everything we did. They just knew how to win."

MAROON

The crowd is ready, the cheerleaders divide, and they begin. The left yells MAROON, and the right yells WHITE, alternating into a MAROON/WHITE crescendo at any football or basketball game at the university.

The cheerleader is the middleman between the team and the crowd; but what goes into being a cheerleader? "We've got spirit . . . a chant that exemplifies the cheerleader and their job.

Considering that there is no pay, no scholarships, four or more practices a week, and sometimes very low crowd attendance, it would seem determination, love of the cheerleading sport, and extremely high motivations play a big part in being a cheerleader.

The 14 members of the 82-83 squad clearly displayed the enthusiasm that cheerleading requires. Motivation ran high in the squad this year, it was apparent in their cheers, stunts, and dance routines. Each member was able to exercise their creativeness in performing at the games.

This year was the first time two sets of captains were used. Angela Hamilton and Mark Simmons were captains during the football season; Carole Kimmel and Mike Ernst were captains for the basketball season.

This year the cheerleaders also attended a camp at Virginia Tech to learn and to compete. Over 80 squads competed in three categories, and Eastern's 82-83 squad placed in the top 12 with the likes of U.K.

The chant continues ". . . yes we do, we've got spirit, how about you?" typified the 82-83 cheerleading squad.

Colonels Finish Fourth in Frustrating Season

They weren't suppose to do as well as they did.

The men's basketball team was picked by the "experts" to finish seventh in the Ohio Valley Conference this season. After going 5-21 the season before, who could argue.

Well, Max Good could, and he did!

He worked and worked and worked his team. Despite the loss of three probable starters, Good worked his team to a 10-17 overall record and a 7-7 tally in the OVC. That was good enough for a tie for fourth.

"I really think we could have finished at least third," said head coach Max Good. "It's even possible that we could have won the OVC."

The Colonels started the season like the experts might have been right with their pick. They struggled out of the gate to a dismal 3-9 record. That drout ended with a 70-49 loss to Xavier. That loss may have done some good.

Colonels Faced Tough Schedule

Well, things started to get a little better the following week. The Colonels rallied from 17 points down to beat arch-rival Morehead State. They then added three straight conference wins to boost their record to 7-9 and more importantly, 5-2 in the OVC; good enough for second.

After a close loss to nationally-ranked Memphis State, the Colonels lost eight out of their last 10 games to destroy any hopes of making post-season play.

The Colonels faced a tough schedule throughout the season. Good won't accept that as an excuse. They met NCAA tourney participants Louisville and Memphis State and NIT participant Vanderbilt. NAIA semi-finalists Northern Ky. and West Virginia Weslyan were Colonel opponents also.

"I kept telling the players, if we keep working hard some good is going to happen," said Good. "We didn't know if it was going to be the next game, next week or next year."

Lady Colonels Beaten in Post Season Tourney

With a heart-breaking 58-56 loss to Murray State in the opening round of the Ohio Valley Conference women's post-season tournament, head coach Dianne Murphy's women's basketball team ended their season.

There were tears after the game but, the Lady Colonels were a young team. They opened their season apprehensively as they faced a tough schedule with unknown talent.

The Colonels faced such powerhouses as Duke, Middle Tennessee and Oral Roberts.

They opened their season defeating Pikeville College by a large margin. After such an impressive opener, the Maroons teetered with a .500 season all year.

The first half of the season saw the Colonels with impressive wins over conference foes Murray State and Austin Peay before suffering a close loss at Oral Roberts.

Goodin Leads Nation

The second half of the year was a lot better for the Colonels. They won six of their last 10 games.

The Colonels fought nationally-ranked Georgia Lady Bulldogs evenly for 37 minutes. Their play evoked high praise from UG coach Andy Landers. "They are a good team," he said.

The Lady Colonels ended their season with a 14-13 overall record and were 4-6 in the OVC. It was good enough for a fourth place league finish.

The year was highlighted by having two players make the All-OVC team. Junior Lisa Goodin and senior Tina Wermuth made the first and second teams respectively.

Goodin, the Colonel's all-everything, led the league and nation in free throw percentage at .913. She led the team in scoring with a 19.1 per game average. Goodin is EKU's second all-time leading scorer with 1564 points.

Field Hockey Team Never Quits

The Colonel's field hockey team finished their season with a 9-10 record. Robin Forhecz was the high scorer for the team. Four seniors that also had an outstanding season were Suzanne Hastings, Wilma Howard, and Lisa Loran.

Coach Lynne Harvel pointed out that the team got off to a slow start due to inexperience and injuries among the players. She said, "The girls showed a lot of development and improvement as the season continued."

Throughout the years, the lady Colonels kept a never-quit attitude. This was evident in their last game against the University of Louisville. The Colonels were down by two goals with only one and a half minutes left in the game. The team pulled together and scored two consecutive goals to tie the game. They went on to win in overtime by a 3-2 score.

Coach Harvel was proud of her team for overcoming all the problems they had and doing better than she had expected of them.

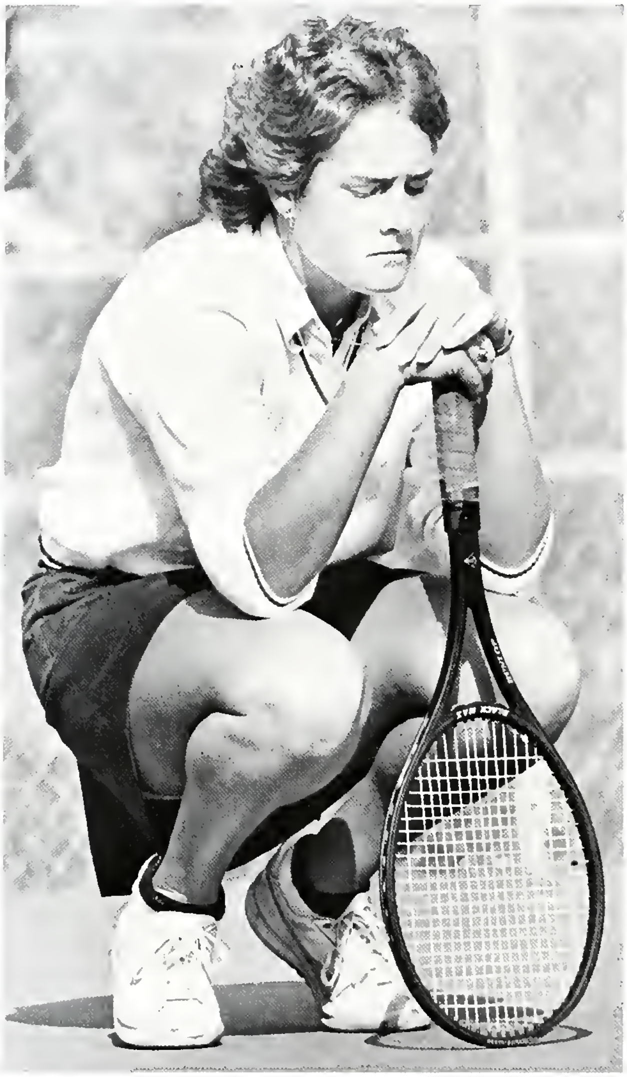
Young Netters Squad Have 2-7 Season



The women's tennis team finished its fall season with a disappointing 2-7 record.

Head coach Martha Mullins had quite a task in front of her as she had only two returning players from last year's team.

"We were so close every time," said Mullins, "but with such a young squad it was to be expected."

The netters season was a season of ups and downs. They opened their campaign with a fourth place finish in the Louisville Invitational.

They then suffered three straight defeats before topping Marshall University. The Colonels, once again, hit a skid and dropped four straight before closing out their season with a victory over conference-rival Western.

"Lack of experience and intensity has hurt us in the losses," said Mullins. "In particular, the capacity to get crucial points. However, our two veterans, Susan Wilson and Kristi Spagenberg, did show that they had made progress since the last season."

Spikers Have Shakey Year; Miss NCAA Bid

The women's volleyball team suffered a year of ups and downs in the 1982 season. The Spikers compiled a 34-15 record but did not receive a bid to the national tournament.

Since the university women's athletic department switched affiliations from the AIAW to the NCAA, the OVC conference has to earn an at large bid.

"We had a good year," said Head coach Geri Polvino. "We won some important matches but we did poorly in some too."

"I don't think it is fair," said Senior Deanne Madden. "How do they know we couldn't compete."

Despite losing the national bid the Colonels did have a good season. They had their 15th winning season out of 17 campaigns.

The Colonels blitzed their schedule by winning their first four matches. They then finished third in the EKU Invitational — the same tournament they won convincingly last year.

After a loss to nationally-ranked Tennessee, the Spikers won the prestigious Florida State Invitational. They went undefeated through the tournament beating 17th ranked Florida State twice.

The Colonels continued their winning ways topping Louisville, KSU, Tennessee Tech and Morehead State.

The Spikers then hit a slump by losing seven out of their next 15 games including two losses to Morehead State and Cincinnati each.

After a team meeting, the Colonels turned things around as they beat 17th ranked Texas AM (who received the national bid instead of EKU) in the Tennessee Classic. They followed this with a second consecutive OVC championship.

Madden was named to the MSU and FSU all-tournament teams and was named honorable mention All-American. Lori Duncan was also named to the MSU all-tournament.

Women's Cross Country Wins OVC

The 1982 women's cross country season could be looked at as a time to remember, according to newly appointed coach, Rick Erdmann.

Led by senior Maria Pazarentzos, the lady colonels captured the Ohio Valley Conference championship, placing five runners in the top ten positions.

Pazarentzos, who placed second in the meet with a time of 19:06 over a three-mile course, was followed by teammate Lisa Renner, sixth; Barb Wildermuth, eighth; Ellen Barrett, ninth; and Linda Davis, tenth.

The colonels won the meet with a score of 35 points, upsetting defending champs, Murray State, who finished second with 44 points.

Erdmann, who took over this year temporarily in place of Sandra Martin, said this year's team ran well as a group, and he contributed that as a key to their success.

Other Eastern runners were Paula Garrett who finished 14th, and Eve Combs who finished 17th.

Eels win KISC; finish sixth at Midwests

The Electrifying Eels had a record setting season rewriting no less than six school marks.

Don Combs set new marks in the 100 and 200 meter breaststroke. Brian Conroy broke the record in the 100 meter backstroke with Mark Maher eclipsing the previous 50 meter freestyle mark.

Conroy and Combs then teamed with Scott Vennefron and Maher to set the record in the 400 medley relay. Mike Strange and Ben Meisenheimer joined Maher and Conroy to form a record-breaking team in the 400 freestyle relay.

These record-breaking performances didn't overshadow the overall team performances.

The Eels finished first in the Kentucky Intercollegiate Swimming Championships and sixth of 12 teams in the Midwest Independent Swimming Championships. These topped off a 5-6 dual meet season which included a 1-point win over powerhouse Marshall University.

The Eels got the season rolling as they burst to a 4-2 record with wins against Louisville, Youngstown, Morehead and Marshall. They then lost four before topping Wright State in the season finale.

Freak accident puts Riflers sixth

The rifle team captured its first Ohio Valley Conference Championship in school history to highlight a "disappointing" season under first-year head coach Capt. Mike McNamara.

The Colonels made their annual trip to the National Collegiate Athletic Association's championships only to come away with a heartbreaking sixth place finish.

The maroon shooters were third when a freak accident happened to one of their members, Kim Floer. Floer's rifle misfired thus finishing her shooting for the day.

"I felt terrible," said Floer. "It's not usual (misfiring) especially at the NCAA finals. I shot well in the individuals."

Capt. McNamara echoed his player, "It was like running track and tripping."

Despite the disappointing national finish, the Riflers produced well enough for three members to make All-American status. They were: Floer, Mark Bender and Mike Bender. Floer and Mike Bender were tops in the air rifle and small bore shooting respectively.

Colonels Take First in OVC's MVP, and Coach of the Year Awards

The Colonel's golf team got off to a slow start in 1982. However, as the season progressed new team members began filling in certain spots which gave coach Bobby Seaholm a solid team.

The Colonels 'gelled' in time for their Colonel Classic. The Maroons took the tournament championship by one stroke over conference rival Murray State.

The Maroons, under unsuitable weather conditions, took the OVC championship by a blistering 18 strokes. Colonel Pat Stephens finished first individually overall with an even par score of 216. Stephens was named MVP of the conference for his accomplishments.

Coach Seaholm also garnered an individual award as he was named OVC Coach of the Year.

Colonels Boast Five on All-Conference Team

The baseball team had a record-breaking year in 1982. They broke the school record for winning percentages with a season tally of 30-12.

The season had many highlights. The 'Lumber Company' had a 5-1 record at the Rollins College Tournament in Florida. They also won the Northern Division of the OVC with a 7-1 tally.

According to Coach Jim Ward, the season was very successful. The team achieved 11 goals out of the 15 they established at the beginning of the season.

All-Conference players were Jeff Lehkamp, Steve Engel, Tim Hofstetter, Joe Myers, and Richie Brooks. Some other outstanding players were Steve Rebholz who ranked fourth in the nation in earned-run-average. Hofstetter was named All-South Regional and third team All-American.

Three pitchers from last year's squad were signed to professional contracts. Jim Harkins and Gene Walter went to the San Diego Padres. Dominic Perrino went to the Utica Blue Sox.

The Colonel tracksters had numerous victories in the major relays of the year. They set school records in the 4 x 100, 4 x 200 relays and the sprint medley relay.

Coach Rick Erdmann was relatively pleased with the trackster's performance throughout the season. He felt they ran excellent relays and was 'excited' about the new school records.

Kenny Glover, a senior from Gladstone, Virginia, made All-American and earned a trip to the National Championships. Also making the trip was the team of Otis Jones, Cory Forrest, Nate White and Kelvin Lewis in the 4 x 100 relay.

The women's track team was plagued by numerous injuries which held the team from performing to their potential.

Maria Pazarentzos, a junior, felt that the season was "more of a learning experience." She felt the team was young and lacking in depth.

Coach Martin worked the team hard, but due to their injuries they couldn't put in enough time towards team workouts. As a result, the tracksters didn't do as well as last year.

Iris Amos succeeded in qualifying for the AIAW National Championship in the 400 meter hurdles.

Board of Regents

Bailey

Model Laboratory School was voted in and four academic programs were voted out during the October meeting of the Board of Regents.

The Model lab proposal voted favorably upon by the Board stated that Madison County retain capital outlay and power equalization funds, as well as other current expense funds, in an amount not to exceed $190,000 over the next year. Any funds over this amount would be used by the University to defray the expense of operating the school.

The four programs approved for suspension by the Board because of insufficient student enrollment include: MA programs in French and Spanish, and BA programs in Russian and Ibero-American Studies.

Members of the Board of Regents include: Charles C. Combs, Chairman, J.W. Phelps, Vice-Chairman; Dr. Keith Algier, Faculty Representative; Robert J. Begley; Jerry S. Ikerd; John Keith; Dr. Rodney Gross; Mrs. Hallie Shouse; Dr. Grady Stumbo; and Barry Metcalf.

"Computers are enabling us to become, once again, generalized . . ."

This year may well be remembered as the year computers captured the University. Beginning with the Spring semester, student registration was done by a computer system the University had installed.

President J.C. Powell said, "The installation of computers illustrates a reverse of direction for the University. A few years ago, the Administration was very generalized. As the University grew to serve an increasing number of students, so did our offices and their respective responsibilities, and we in turn became specialized at our separate jobs. Now, it seems, we are going back to a more generalized approach.

"Computers are enabling us to become, once again, generalized, and at the same time, supply us with a learning aid. We are planning a heavy commitment for instructional computing which will probably affect every College at the University," said Powell.

President Emeritus
Dr. Robert R. Martin

"Adequate funding is the biggest problem facing our universities," said President Emeritus, Robert R. Martin. Serving as Senator from the 22nd district, he is in a unique position to understand the needs of higher education. Having spent 16 years as president of the University and being a driving force in the development of Kentucky's regional universities, he has a historical perspective from which to be a strong advocate for education. He serves as Chairman of the Senate Health and Welfare Committee, Vice Chairman of the Education Committee, and is an active member of the Appropriations and Revenue Committee and the Review and Investigations Committee that completed a review of the University's foundations.

The University's Administrative Council continued to serve as a focal point for the discussion and consideration of administrative matters with institution-wide implications. The Council was directly involved in projects related to the new telephone communications system and the implementation of administrative computing software programs.

The Administrative Council, with the addition of the Chair of the Faculty Senate, served as an interim Institutional Planning Committee which spent the Spring Semester developing a model for long-range planning at the University.

College of Undergraduate Studies

The College of Undergraduate Studies was recognized for an outstanding general education program in 1981. According to Joseph Schwendeman, Dean of the College, the ACT College Outcome Measures Project Test began in 1974 to measure the effectiveness of colleges throughout the nation at preparing their students in the area of general education.

300 University students, tested in 1979-81, showed a significant elevation of awareness upon completion of their general education program. Dean Schwendeman commented, "Results from the test ranked our students at the top; we tied for first place nationwide."

Schwendeman feels this program's success is attributed to four major factors: 1) good teaching, 2) a formalized general education program, 3) effective advising, and 4) a competent administrative unit on campus.

The new computer registration procedure that was initiated in Spring registration was coordinated through the Undergraduate college. Dean Schwendeman replied, "We began planning the registration procedure in February of 1981. We are pleased with the program's efficiency so far, but we are still working with the computer for a better response time that would increase its efficiency more."

Graduate School

Reduction of federal monies in the area of Higher Education has begun to have a visual effect on the Graduate School. Funds that once helped students pay their college costs are less available and, as a result, a general decline in enrollment for the School is being recognized.

As enrollment slacks, "the continuing concern for quality in each of our programs remains our utmost concern," said Dean Charles Gibson. "What we try to do is look carefully at the quality of a program and maintain that quality, despite the pinch from the budget cuts."

Two of the Graduate School's programs; the Master of Arts in French and the Master of Arts in Spanish, were being considered for suspension at the time of the interview in an effort to maintain this quality. Each of the Graduate School's programs are being reviewed and those which have minimal output in degrees are being recommended for suspension. This review cycle began last year and will continue for five years, with a selected number of programs reviewed each year. Eventually, all the School's programs will be reviewed.

Dean Gibson replied, "No one would like to see any program become suspended, but those programs with few students compromise the quality of teaching in the Graduate School by overloading certain teachers."

The Graduate School offers degrees in 34 programs. Dean Gibson has been in charge of the school since 1973 and has been at the University since 1962.

College of Allied Health and Nursing

According to Dean David Gale of The College of Allied Health and Nursing, enrollment into the department was held stable this year.

"There is an excellent job market for graduating seniors," Dean Gale replied. "We always have more jobs than we have students available."

Major curricular changes in the College are the two-year and four-year studies in Medical Technology which are fully accredited.

Dean Gale stated, "I am very proud of the students. After taking their licensing exam, they rank very high nationally."

Judy K. Short is the Outstanding Student for the College of Allied Health and Nursing. Her major is in the department of Baccalaureate Nursing where she maintains a 3.915 GPA. Judy said, "I feel I owe my education to my parents, husband, and children, because without their help and understanding, it would not be possible. My interest in the area of nursing is largely due to my former instructor, Katherine Johnson. She has provided inspiration and encouragement and has been a major influence on my career goals."

College of Applied Arts and Technology

The College of Applied Arts and Technology, according to Dean Hannson, has undergone many changes and modifications in the past seven years. Dean Hannson said, "Change is the main thing when running an Applied Arts and Technology department. We must change as technology advances.

"Major changes that have occurred since I have been Dean are the additions of the Mass Communications Department and the Military Science Department."

Hannson feels that federal cutbacks have not hindered the College from growing in student number or keeping up with changing technology.

College of Arts and Humanities

The College of Arts and Humanities is dedicated to creative study in Arts, English, Foreign Languages, Humanities, Music, Philosophy and Religion, and Speech and Theatre Arts. The college serves all students through the general education requirements.

This year the College had three degrees concelled: Bachelors Degree in Russian, Masters Degree in Spanish, and Masters Degree in French. Dean John Long said, "The cancellation of the Bachelors degree in Russian was the only serious curricular loss. It was cancelled because the major did not have enough student enrollment."

The college sponsored two career oriented activities. One was the Arts and Humanities Committee for Career Planning and Development, which consisted of panel discussions by University alumni. The second was the English Career Day which concentrated on the topic of writing well.

When asked about job opportunities for Arts and Humanities majors, Dean Long stated, "Changing job markets make finding a job hard, but well prepared students are finding satisfying jobs." Dean Long advises students to try to get a liberal education rather than being educated in a specific area.

College of Business

Enrollment growth continued in the College of Business in the number of students choosing a business major and in the number of non-business electives. The growth was more evident in the Computer Information Systems area, perhaps because the job market in that field has continued strong. In other business areas the job market has been somewhat weakened by the general economic decline although job placement for business graduates has remained fair to good.

A major change for incoming business students was the more rigorously enforced standard regarding course sequencing prior to beginning their junior year. This rule is expected to strengthen the preparation and competitiveness of business students in upper division courses. Dean Howard Thompson said, "We hope it causes students to decide earlier whether or not the business program fits their objectives. The decision must be made earlier, at least during the student's first year, in order to sequence the general education and lower division business courses correctly and avoid losing a semester. The overall result may be slightly fewer students, but they definitely will be better prepared graduates."

College of Education

Changes ran rampant in the College of Education. The GPA requirement for incoming freshmen rose to 2.25 in 1981. A new Masters Degree program in Education with an emphasis on gifted and talented students was implemented in 1982, and the outlook for accreditation from the American speech and Hearing Association for the college's speech and hearing program was expected. Dean Dixon Barr explained, "We've been building our speech and hearing program and facilities over the past couple of years hoping to receive accreditation from ASHA, and that now looks likely to become a reality."

Competency testing began to be initiated earlier to insure the quality of the teachers the college educates. Dean Dixon commented, "The tests are designed to test the teacher-to-be's competency in the basics of math, composition, reading, and hearing. We encourage students to take supplemental courses if they are lacking in an area(s)."

A new program being considered as an additive to these competency skills is computer literacy for the college's students. Dean Dixon said, "Teachers are going to have to become computer literate because of the wide use of computers in schools."

College of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics

The College of Health, Physical Education, Recreation, and Athletics was restructured three years ago.

The Men's and Women's departments of Physical Education which were originally a part of the College of Education, were combined, then added to the College of Health and Physical Education. The Department of Recreation which was also under the College of Education was added to the College. These changes were made to improve the quality of Education.

When asked about the quality of education, Dean Russell Bogue said, "Students are feeling the demand from the job market. All departments are strong and have excellent faculty members who are willing to help.

"There are jobs available, but the HPERA major may have to leave Kentucky to find one. The southwest is a good place for jobs.

The college has not had any sizeable increases or decreases in enrollment in any of the departments in the last three years. Dean Bogue doesn't foresee any enrollment problems in any of the departments in the near future.

The College of Law Enforcement, under the supervision of Dean Robert Posey, maintained the same number of students as last year, but showed significant growth in the Fire Prevention and Control Department, and the Security Department. Student number in the Police Department and Corrections Department held constant. The Department of Fire Prevention and Control and the Department of Security boasted a 95-100% placement in a job within six months of graduation. College of Natural and Mathematical Sciences

The enrollment in the College of Natural and Mathematical Sciences increased due to expanded interest of students in the area of Computer Sciences and new computer purchases by the college reflected this increase.

Dean Donald Batch said, "Due to tight budgets, the college couldn't afford all of the computer science machinery available in the field, but was able to purchase some new computer equipment — both hardware and software."

This new equipment is not only to be used by Computer Science majors, but will be used by other departments, primarily the Chemistry and Biology Department for research and laboratory experiments.

Dean Batch concluded, "Modern learning facilities and dedication of teachers are important to make college a worthwhile learning experience. The quality of a student's education is the most important aspect of college."

The Eastern Progress is the official newspaper on campus. The goal is to print current stories that are of interest to students. Producing the Progress involves the cooperation of all the staff from the editor Shanda Pulliam, to the circulation director, Eddie Miller who makes sure the paper is delivered on time every Thursday. The Progress is a vital part of the Department of Mass Communications, and it serves as a laboratory experience for students in journalism. A new feature the Police Beat informed students of crime and vandalism that occurred on campus. This years marching band had the distinguished thrill of being the only band in the University's history to perform at nationally televised night games — twice. The average practice session the week before a performance was 13 hours, and it was all worthwhile. The 105 band, 12 flag, seven rifle members, and five majorettes put their practice time in at the Begley parking lot — rain, snow, or shine. Robert Belser, this year's new band director, brought enthusiasm and harmony to the band's routines. His graduate assistants Donna and Gary Adams and Tom Coleman helped to drill and polish the entire band organization at practices. Distinguished Groups With Individualized Goals

According to Webster, honorary adj/ la: having or conferring distinction b: commerative 2a: conferred or elected in recognition of achievement or service without the usual prerequisites or obligations.

Honor society/n/: a society for the recognition of scholarly achievement especially at the undergraduate level in colleges and universities.

Members of honoraries and honor societies have long been a mysterious group. You hear or think of the phrase and automatically visions come to mind of bookworms who never venture out of their rooms, except for the trips to classes and the library. However, this couldn't be further from the truth. Many of the members are involved in organizations affiliated with their majors, sororities, fraternities, and student government. A distinction needs to be made between honoraries and honor societies.

Honoraries are mainly groups that recognize achievements or service with no major requirements. The campus based honoraries generally have a grade point and a certain amount of hours required. There are no obligations or duties that go along with being an honorary, except for the gpa.

Honor societies are constantly striving to achieve their particular goals. The members have an obligation and a duty to see that these are being carried out. They also have gpa requirements.

Many of the honor societies at the university are nationally affiliated and must meet certain criteria before they can become established on a campus. The "nationals," as they are called, begin investigations into the worthiness of the group, the current undergraduate programs being offered in conjunction with the specific honor society, and the campus as a whole. Natinoals are very selective, most only hold elections and initiations for new chapters every three or four years. The process itself can take up to five years, so when a chapter is chartered, it is something special for the campus.

The hard work and personal sacrifice that students put forth to achieve scholastic excellence deserves recognition, and these distinguished groups accomplish this.

Alpha Phi Sigma is the national honor society for criminal justice. The society recognizes scholastic excellence by undergraduate and graduate students in the criminal justice sciences. Members must have completed one-third of the credit hours required by the Law Enforcement College, must maintain a 3.0 overall gpa and a 3.2 in the Criminal Justice field, and must rank in the top 35% of their class. Alpha Phi Sigma sponsored guest speaker, Rev. John Erwin, on criminal rehabilitation in October, and produced the College of Law Enforcement Faculty/Staff directory. They have been at Eastern since 1969. Their advisors are Dr. Elizabeth Horn and Dr. Bruce Wolford.

The Catalina Club is a group that worked to promote physical fitness and to familiarize their members and the campus with equatic swimming. The members benefited by becoming and keeping physically fit. Catalina Club also helped them develop the artistic creativity in performing the routines. Four clinics and tryouts were held in the fall for interested university females. The girls presented the Spring Water Show in April, the theme was "A Salute to Walt Disney." Catalina club has been on campus since 1952. Their advisor is David Todd Day.

DPMA

The Data Processing Management Association is a student chapter of the professional D.P.M.A. organization. The goal of D.P.M.A. is to give the students a better understanding of the vital business role of data processing, its relationship to management, and to install a professional attitude among data processors in the application of the data processing skills. The members visited computer facilities, donated to University Pals, provided the computer program for the "Monster Bash," and raised money for the Robert Shesley Scholarship. D.P.M.A. has been on campus for four years, their advisor in Dr. E. Lin.

The Food and Nutrition Club was open to students in the Nutrition and Food Service Administration. The purpose of the group was to promote proper nutrition throughout the campus community. They did this through their nutrition column in the campus newspaper. During the month of March, the club sponsored the National Month of Nutrition in which information about nutritional topics were supplied. The club also provided assistance with the Meals on Wheels program. The Food and Nutrition Club has been on Eastern's campus for the past fourteen years. The members were advised by Effie Creamer.

The Football Hostesses as a club have been at the university for the last four years. Their main objective was to assist the football program with high school recruits and their parents prior to home games. It gave the girls an opportunity to promote the university and its athletic program. To become a hostess, all interested girls attended an informal interview. Invitation appeared annually in the FYI. The number of hostesses selected depended upon the number of players that were expected to be recruited. The Football Hostesses were advised by Coach Jim Tanara.

FTD/HORT/AAN

The FTD Horticulture/AAN club is an active organization in the horticulture department. Their main purpose is to increase professionalism in the horticulture field and related industries. They try to offer students special programs in the floral industry and keep students aware of the rapid changes in the field. To the graduating members, the club tries to provide transition opportunities to post college positions. The club is known for the plant sales in the Powell building, for providing free floral arrangements to academic offices, and the plants they sold daily in the book store. They went to conventions, held banquets, and sponsored their annual Christmas party for the Dessie Scott Children's Home. They are sponsored by Robert Lay and Steve Black.

GREEK

GREEK IS IT refers to the essence of Greek life as it exists at Eastern. No Greek may be necessarily better as a person, but his/her life may be benefited in the process. Rush is evidence of that fact, particularly in the fall.

Rush offers each incoming freshman a chance to meet people, experience new horizons and grow as a person. Rush offers everyone to see firsthand the benefits so cherished by Greeks — service, leadership, social, friendship and scholarship.

The fact remains that no matter what phase of college life, whether or not you choose the Greek way, no life remains untouched. Rush is it.

"No man is an island unto himself" wrote John Donne some 350 years ago. This statement holds true today.

Greek organizations are only as strong as their weakest link, and each person must make rush work as a unit, a finely tuned machine.

No one can take away another's college memories, but it is time to share a few.

* College life offers you the opportunity to learn;
Greek life provides the motivation through scholarship and leadership programs.

* College life offers you a wide range of activities;
Greek life organizes and involves you in them.

* College life offers social events;
Greek life offers you organized social interaction.

* College life offers the benefits of the community;
Greek life involves the community through philanthropy projects.

* College life offers you four years;
Greek life offers you a lifetime.

* Greek is it.

IS IT

PANHELLENIC-INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

Greek Week provided a great final celebration for the hard work of the Interfraternity Council and Panhellenic for the years 1982-83.

The second Greek Week began with a carnival at the Courthouse to raise money for the Cancer Society. Also for cancer, the Greeks smashed the McDonald's Drive-Thru Record. 353 Big Macs, fries and cokes were munched during the world record breaking event.

Greek games pitted sororities and fraternities in intense competitive battle. Beta Theta Pi and Phi Beta Sigma tied for the men's games. Delta Sigma Theta took the women's honors.

At the Armory dance and awards presentation, Beta Doug Holmes and KD Michele Paul were selected as Greek Man and Woman of the year. The Betas and Kappa Delta were the Greek Week overall champions.

Service projects of Panhellenic-IFC included the Great Leukemia Clean-Up, where Greeks collected over $500 for Richmond patients by cleaning up Richmond. United Way projects were with the Women's Basketball team and through the "Rake-It-In-For-United Way" event.

A Greek orientation for incoming students helped to start rush in the summer. A total of 161 women and 154 men pledged in the fall.

Spring plans included the Panhellenic Miss EKU Pageant, a Panhellenic Women's Concern Week, an Alcohol Awareness Week and the third Greek Week April 10-16.

All the money that the Zeta Nu chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha made went to the community, or for service.

K

The the community, the AKAs played in a charity basketball game for the Richmond Orphanage. They sponsored a needy child through Model school. They also donated gifts to Kenwood Nursing Home, gave to the EKU Nursing Society, and went Greek Christmas caroling.

Other donations were $500 to the Dotie Rhea Scholarship, $100 to the Barbara Hunter Scholarship, the NAACP and the Red Cross.

This year, as always, the Eta Rho chapter of Delta Sigma Theta had service on their mind.

The Deltas sponsored a canned food drive for the Kidney Foundation, a Leukemia drive, a party at the Kenwood House for the Elderly, and they went Christmas caroling.

Socially, the ladies of DST captured Teke basketball, placed second in Greek Week and helped in the Danville Special Olympics.

The climax was the 12th annual Delta Week March 21-27. The features were the Mr. Esquire Pageant and the Battle of the DJs.

ALPHA DELTA PI

Scholarship provided the drive in Alpha Delta Pi. They had the highest GPA on campus and ranked in the top four in National GPA. The sisters won the Diamond Four Point Awards for the second consecutive year at the National Convention in Boulder, Colorado.

During Homecoming, the ADPis placed four girls in the court. Suzanne Fawbush, representing the SAEs, captured Homecoming Queen. Carol Kimmel finished as second runner-up. Other honors included two girls in the Pike Calendar, the SX Derby Queen and the Lambda Chi Bust Queen.

The year in sports for Alpha Delta Pi proved successful. They captured the Phi Delt sorority softball tournament, the Pike Bowling Tournament and the Phi Mu Swim-A-Thon for charity. They also participated in Beta Football, KA Old South and SAE County Fair.

Showing their support of the football team, the ADPis won the spirit contest sponsored for the Atlanta Superstation televised night game against Murray State.

The ADPis sponsored the annual talent show, "The Greek Follies." They were main contributors in the Leukemia clean-up of Richmond.

Alpha Gamma Delta shined in the service area for the year. They sold balloons at Maroon Balloon Day, and they staged the annual Mr. Sexy Legs contest for Juvenile Diabetes. The Alpha Gams finished second in the Leukemia Trash Clean-up of Richmond, which was sponsored by Panhellenic and IFC.

This Gamma Omicron chapter kept very active. They strived in KA Old South, Greek Week, Phi Delt Softball, TKE basketball and the SAE County Fair. The Alpha Gams captured first place with their Homecoming float.

The Alpha Gam Milestone picture theme was "Alpha Gams Racing through the 80's." The Corvette was provided by Buford-Shoop Chevrolet.

Socially, the sorority had three dances and a Spring Formal.

Activities for Chi Omega were successful once again. For the second time in three years, the sisters captured the championship of the SAE County Fair. They were third in the Lambda Chi Watermelon Bust and the Sigma Chi Derby.

The Chi Os sponsored a tea for the EKU Faculty, inviting the guests to socialize with the sorority.

Chi Omega sparkled in their service projects. They attended the Special Olympics in Danville, helped with the Juvenile Diabetes campaign, and aided the Muscular Dystrophy Telethon. The "Owls" sponsored their first dance contest for the Telford Community Center. Together with the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, the sisters ran the first Richmond Ugliest Bartender Competition for the March of Dimes.

Other busy activities included fall rush and the social calendar. The Chi Os pledged 28 new baby owls for the fall. Socially, they had a Winter Formal at the Sheraton Inn and Spring Formal at the Continental Inn.

DELTA ZETA

Delta Zeta closed her history book of colonization a year and two days after appearing on campus.

September 11, 49 Xi Beta founders signed their charter in a private ceremony. That evening installation of the chapter was celebrated over a banquet with parents and National officers.

Delta Zeta made their mark in Greek activities. They won first place in the Lambda Chi Watermelon Bust. They also hosted the first Delta Zeta Frat Man Classic for campus fraternities. All of the proceeds from this new event went to the Gallaudet College for the Hearing Impaired.

Other service-oriented projects included raking leaves for United Way and selling balloons for Juvenile Diabetes.

The DZ's first fall rush was a great success as 26 new girls were added to the order.

The "Jolly Joker" dance and Winter Formal were highlights of the social calendar.

Keeping with their Milestone picture theme, "Run For The Roses" (OPPOSITE), Delta Zeta provided a fitting poetic memory.

* Little Yearling,
What do you run to be?
Will your rider wear silks
Of pink and green?
Racey two-year-old,
What do you run to be?
Will you win a blanket
Of Kilarney roses for me?

Nationals rated Kappa Alpha Theta sorority at Eastern the most improved chapter. The "National Forward Award" was presented to the Thetas at their Grand Convention in Scottsdale, Arizona.

In sports, they conquered all foes in the Beta Football Tournament. Beating the ADPis in overtime and the Pi Phis 12-0 in the final, they took home first place honors.

In the ADPi Follies, the Thetas captured second place with their "Barber Shop Quartet." Other acts from a new fall rush included "All Wrapped Up In EKU" and "Greatest Show On Earth," which inspired the Milestone theme picture.

The Annual Halloween Dance at the armory raised money for the Theta National philanthropy, the "Institute of Logopedics." Several girls were volunteers for the Special Olympics in Danville.

The University Thetas reached their tenth anniversary on March 2, 1982. Thetas from UK and Centre came to the University to mark the national Founder's Day January 27, which made Kappa Alpha Theta 121 years old.

Academically, the Thetas ranked second among sororities.

Enthusiastic Kappa Delta took the annual Sigma Chi Derby by storm. Honored with the "Most Spirited" sorority award, KD screams were heard all around the campus. Overall, the sisters captured second place.

KD Formal Rush was highlighted by a Broadway production during the final round. This fall skit helped get 26 new pledges. Those same pledges produced the annual Kappa Delta Dating Game in November.

In service, the KDs earned money for their national philanthropy in Richmond, Virginia — The Crippled Children's Hospital. They also visited a nursing home in Richmond.

Socially, the KDs had 4 dances in Lexington. A combined mixer with the KDs and SAEs from the university and UK highlighted the busy calendar.

PHI MU

Social and service in Phi Mu sorority remained an active part of the agenda for the year.

Phi Mus placed in a tie for second in 1982 Greek Week events. They also participated in Lambda Chi Watermelon Bust, SAE County Fair, KA Old South, Sigma Chi Derby and Beta Football

Always high on service, Phi Mu built a toy cart, filled it with toys and donated it to the children at Pattie A. Clay Hospital. The first Phi Mu Swim-A-Thon, as part of Project Hope Week, collected money for Greek Organizations who swam laps for charity. All money from the week went to Project Hope.

The Greek "Holiday Happening" took place in December. This Phi Mu Christmas tea party gathered Greeks together for some refreshing spirit.

Academically, the Phi Mu spring pledge class had the highest overall Greek GPA.

The Phi Mus have four dances each semester. Spring Formal was at the Continental Inn.

PI BETA PHI

ΠΒΦ

Pi Beta Phi excelled in the area of service over the past year. The sisters received a first place trophy in the local Leukemia drive by picking up trash.

At Christmas, the Pi Phis donated gifts to the residents of Kenwood Nursing Home. For Homecoming, sorority members sold balloons for the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation.

The Pi Phis raised money for United Way through a "Fraternity Kidnap" and through the raking of leaves. Over $900 was donated to other national philanthropies.

At the annual Sigma Chi Derby the Pi Phis "chased" their way to a first place victory. In both Beta Football and the SAE County Fair, the sorority captured second place. They also played intramural volleyball and football.

This Kentucky Gamma chapter had a Parent's Day in October, their first Alumni Weekend in November, and the annual retreat in Gatlinburg, Tennessee. Fall Formal was at Rough River State Park.

The Pi Beta Phi National Convention was held in Louisville during the month of June.

This Eastern chapter kept busy, as Delta Upsilon demonstrated their prowess in both academics and in various other activities.

They participated in the Maroon Balloon Day for the third consecutive year, and all of the proceeds went to Juvenile Diabetes. They also sang in the Greek Christmas Carol in the ravine.

They placed well in both the SAE County Fair and the DZ Frat Man Classic. They participated in all intramural sports for the year.

In activities, the Lamba Chis helped in Medic Alert Week, held a sorority kidnap, and were competitors in the Delta Zeta Frat Man Classic and Greek Week '82.

Socially, the fraternity had its Homecoming dance in Richmond and its Spring Formal in Cincinnati.

High spirits in Beta Theta Pi reigned supreme. The brotherhood successfully hosted its annual Beta Football Tournament for independents, fraternities, and sororities, which the SAEs and Thetas won.

In the Spring, the Beta chapter captured the second Greek Week championship. They also had the "Greek Man of the Year", Doug Holmes.

The Betas stole the show in the first DZ Frat Man Classic by winning first place. They captured second place in tennis.

During the Homecoming celebration, Beta Theta Pi built a winning float with the KDs to show their spirit. In the Milestone picture, the Betas cheer on the Colonel football team.

Service meant Kappa Alpha for the Delta Mu Chapter of the university. On Labor Day, the brothers donated over $1700 to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. With the aid of the ADPis, Kappa Alpha gave a Halloween party for the children at the Shriner's Hospital in Lexington.

Nationally, the KAs were chosen as winners of the "Samuel Zennus Amen Award" for chapter excellence. It was the third straight year they have been honored by nationals.

The celebration of the South during Old South Week highlighted the year. Sorority competition in the annual Old South Olympics added excitement to the southern celebration. A barbecue, a champagne reception and "The Sharecropper's Ball" concluded the ceremonies.

Keeping with the high ideals of founding father, Robert E. Lee, the KAs and dates donned confederate uniforms and southern bell dresses to the traditional "Old South Ball." The South was relived in KA style.

Homecoming was celebrated at the Continental Inn.

KAPPA ALPHA PSI

The tenth anniversary as a chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi on campus was celebrated by the Eta Alpha Chapter at the beginning of the fall semester, 1982.

The fraternity's Guide Right Program, designed as the fraternity national service project, was the center of activity.

Beginning the year by cheering the elderly at Crestwood Nursing Home, KAPsi never stopped at proving their fundamental purpose — achievement. They collected for the United Way, donated money to the First Baptist Church Music Center Committee, and helped to complete the restoration of the Richmond North Civil War Cemetery.

Kappa Alpha Psi stole the show in the Delta Zeta Frat Man Classic by taking five first place finishes, as well as the overall second place trophy.

Newly elected president Tyrone Redden continued to progress KAPsi as the 1982-83 year came to a close. The fraternity helped in the Special Olympics in April

PHI DELTA THETA

Academic excellence remained a strongpoint for Phi Delta Theta fraternity during the past year. The Kentucky Gamma chapter had the highest GPA for fraternities.

The Phi Delt sweetheart, Julie Palechak, finished as runner-up to the queen in the 1982 Homecoming Queen competition.

The Phi Deltas supported the EKU Colonels throughout the year by ushering seats for each home game and by sponsoring victory parties after both the football night games. They also helped unload and distribute EKU Yearbooks.

For the second consecutive year, Phi Delta Theta captured the championship of the SAE County Fair. They finished third in the chase for the All-Sports trophy.

Φ K T

After only one year as an active chapter, Phi Kappa Tau had improved in all aspects of Greek life.

The Delta Rho chapter took 16 pledges to strengthen their membership. Nine pledges were taken in the spring.

Scholastically, the Phi Taus finished with the second highest GPA on campus for the fall semester.

In sports, they had a 5-2 record for flag football and had a strong basketball team.

In the spring, the Phi Taus participated in the Cardinal Hill Telethon. This is the second year they have worked for the charity telethon.

Phi Tau Little Sister rush was deemed excellent.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

Civic contributions from the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity were a goal once again. The Zeta Tau chapter won the American Red Cross Blood Drive for the third year.

The Pikes began the fall semester by handing out the Dream Girl Calendar for 1981-82 during registration.

Beginning their fourteenth year at Eastern, the Pikes held a Homecoming dance at Ramada Inn and a Spring Formal in Knoxville, Tennessee.

In sports, the Pikes captured the tug-of-war for the second year in a row. They also, successfully defended their volleyball crown for another year. The Pikes participated in the Teke Basketball and Beta Football Tournaments.

Athletics was the word for Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Capturing the coveted All Sports trophy for the third time in five years, the SAEs reestablished themselves as a fraternity powerhouse. Enroute to the all sports victory, the "Es" compiled a 29-5 Greek record, including a second straight football championship. The brothers won Alpha Gam Volleyball, Beta Football, tennis singles, and softball. They finished second in track, volleyball, soccer and basketball intramurals.

Service projects remained a successful goal. A bike ride to Cincinnati netted over $700 for Sickle Cell Anemia. A stair climb for Cystic Fibrosis collected $100. Cosponsored with Kappa Alpha, Monte Carlo Night for Muscular Dystrophy happened in November. Other events were Paddy Murphy Week, the 13th annual County Fair and the second SAE Haunted House.

The SAEs were the largest fraternity at Eastern with 61 actives, one of only two fraternities with a house and fourth in overall GPA.

They sponsored Homecoming Queen Suzanne Fawbush from their 40-member-strong Little Sister program.

Sororities learned that Kentucky had more than one Derby to celebrate. The Sigma Chi chapter had one of their most successful Sigma Chi Derbies ever. An All Greek party ended the Derby festivities for the fall event. It was a great way to start the year.

The university chapter hosted a Leadership Training Workshop for Sigma Chi chapters around the state. This huge success helped to gain recognition from their National Fraternity.

The second annual Sigma Chi Suitcase Party sent a lucky couple to the Bahamas for a weekend. All money collected went to charity. The Sigs entertained the residents of Kenwood Nursing Home and participated in the All Greek Christmas Caroling Event.

The Sigma Chis participated in all intramural sporting events. They fought their way to the soccer championship, beating the SAEs 2-1 in overtime and the SPis 3-1 in the final. They finished second in Alpha Gam Volleyball and made the playoffs in football.

Homecoming was at the Continental Inn. The annual Spring Formal had brothers traveling to Rough River State Park.

SIGMA NU

The Sigma Nus were on a roll, all the way to Western! The chapter sponsored a bike ride for Diabetes that collected over $250 for the charity. After the ride, the Sigma Nus brought the game ball for the annual Eastern-Western football battle (which EKU won, of course). Next year, the bike riding crew will travel to the Morehead State game for another charity drive.

They also participated in the Maroon Balloon day to make money for Diabetes again.

The Sigma Nus also had a hand in the 52nd Hanging of the Greens that went on in the Keen Johnson Building.

Success for the Sigma Pi Epsilon Lambda chapter was evident throughout the year.

The Pis dribbled a basketball from Morehead to Richmond for the Meals On Wheels program, earning over $1000 for the community.

Winning the championship of the Pike Bowling Tournament highlighted a good year for Sigma Pi activities. They received the second place trophy for Greek Week '82.

In the fall, the Pis finished runnerup to the SAEs in Beta Football, and gained a respectable third place in the SAE County Fair. They also participated in the DZ Frat Man Classic and the Lambda Chi "Air Guitar" Contest.

In sports, the Sigma Pis remained undefeated in soccer until the final game, which they lost in a "turkey shoot" 1-0 to the Sigma Chis. In volleyball, they finished second in both leagues.

To help alumni relations, they held the annual Pig Roast softball tournament for alumni and area chapters. A party and pig roast closed the festivities.

Sigma Pi held its annual Orchid Ball in Cincinnati's Carousel Inn. Homecoming was at Captain's Quarters on the Kentucky River and Spring Formal was in French Lick, Indiana.

TKE

Scholastics and brotherhood for Tau Kappa Epsilon remained at a high level. They obtained the highest GPA among fraternities for the fall semester 1982.

The men of TKE sponsored the yearly basketball tournament, in which over 25 teams competed for trophies and T-shirts. They also sponsored a wrestling tournament for Greeks and Independents.

Being one of only two fraternities with a house, the Tekes painted and made repairs of their century-old house on Lancaster Avenue.

They participated in the DZ Frat Man Classic, the SAE County Fair and all Intramural sports.

They also won the competition for the "Ideal Fraternity Man" at Eastern.

The Tekes planned to have a "World's Greatest Weekend" for TKE chapters all over the U.S. They would participate in basketball, softball and other events.

The brothers planned to have at least two service projects. One is for the St. Jude's Children's Hospital, and the other is for the Easter Seals Foundation.

The Tekes strived in their goals to fulfill their motto, that TKE is the "Fraternity for Life."

THETA CHI

Theta Chi Rally Week rallied at Eta Beta chapter to an outstanding year. All of the proceeds went to Easter Seals.

Scholastically, the Theta Chis remained strong. They finished fourth in overall GPA for the year among fraternities.

As always, the Theta Chis remained active in sports. They finished a respectable third in intramural volleyball. They also finished runner-up in the fraternity division of Teke Basketball.

The Theta Chis sponsored one of downtown's most popular games for the second year, the Quarters Tournament. Once again, the SAEs won the title in this fun battle.

Their Fall Homecoming Dance was at the Harley Hotel.

The most recently chartered sorority is the Mu Lambda chapter of Zeta Phi Beta, Incorporated, and they anticipate a prosperous future. The Zetas have participated in a number of service projects, which include aiding the Leukemia Foundation, visiting nursing homes and sponsoring a Christmas program at the Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children.

Their newest project is the Lizzie Miller Scholarship Fund. A Zeta Week was planned for the spring semester 1983.

Other service endeavors included a Halloween party and an Easter Egg Hunt for the children in the Richmond Community. Each year a check is sent to the United Negro College Fund as well.

The Omegas had their annual basketball tournament for teams, one-on-one and three-on-three. Other fund raisers were dances and car washes.

The Phi Beta Sigma basketball team finished the year in style. Undefeated throughout the season, the Sigmas reigned as campus champs by winning the post-season tourney. They also ran away with the track championship for fraternities.

Fashion Interludes '83 directed by William Parris, showed new fashion trends and designs to the Eastern students.

In service, the Iota Delta chapter sponsored the third annual Mark Singleton Scholarship Fund, which raised over $500. They had a Halloween party at the Telford Community Center and sponsored handicapped children to an EKU football game. They upheld their motto, "Service for Culture, Service for Humanity."

In 1983, the Sigmas embarked on a Big Brother/Little Sister joint service project. In honor of Martin L. King, a memorial service on January 16 was held in the Meditation Chapel.

Phi Beta Sigma sponsored the first Miss Black Essence Pageant for Calendar Girls in the Spring.

Socially, the Sigmas had the annual Blue and White Ball, the Mark Singleton Scholarship Banquet, the Spring Formal Fashion Show and, last, but not least, the Phi Beta Sigma Greek Step Show.

With the combined leadership of Will Mansfield and Michelle O'Bryan, the 1982-83 Milestone staff put the sixtieth volume of the university's yearbook together. The main objective of the staff was quality first then quantity. At times that objective was questioned as those never ending deadlines approached and a certain amount of pages had to be sent to Delmar — or else. The real task was to put out a book that you would be proud to see and show to others, and one that would vividly picture life at the university this year.

The production of the yearbook is an incredible job once undertaken. To say the least, the finished product did not appear overnight. Applications were taken from any interested full-time student beginning in September all the way into January. They tried to cover as many activities as possible without leaving any one group out and combine them within these 328 pages. That is a story within itself.

All in all, this yearbook staff strived to prepare a permanent record of the year, 1982-83, at the University with the help and understanding of their advisor, Larry Bailey. He gave room for experimentation in layouts and ideas while giving guidance.

The people on these two pages want you to know that the long hours of work were put into a book just for your enjoyment. The Milestone tradition never stops, even with the staff changes.

Editor-In-Chief: Will Mansfield decides on slides to be used in the opening section.

Managing Editor: Michelle O'Bryan checks copy for a student life layout.

1983 MILESTONE STAFF

Dateline — September, 1982.....
Welcome to the first staff meeting. I am your editor and this is your managing editor. Everyone must fill out an application. Be sure to sign next to the line that says, "I will give my all to the Milestone above all else, except studies, of course." (If you believe that, the university has 24-hour open house.) Our deadlines are two weeks earlier than last years. (Thank you Delmar.) Get the smelling salts for the returning staff please.

Does anyone have a question so far? The process of working up a page? First you get pictures taken, draw a dummy layout, crop all of the prints, write copy, and then transfer everything to final layouts. Be sure to be near, and use a ball-point pen on the finals. This is a simplified description of course. The details will be worked on at the workshop this Saturday.

Yes, we will have weekly meetings.

Our advisor? Assistant Director of Public Information, Larry Bailey.

Our goal? To put out a book that students won't burn at a peace rally. Refreshments? Only caffeine loaded beverages. By the way, the pizza and counseling center number are up here along with a coffee pot, if you need to work late. (NEED TOO?!!)

Yes, the office will be open for weekends. It will be open all night, if you have to work before a deadline. (HAVE TOO?!!)

Dateline — February, 1983.....
Well it's over. We did it. Another edition, another year, another staff. Okay, the books will be here at the end of April. The getaway car will be ready at the end of distribution on the first day. When does everyone want to gather at the farm for a picnic, wooden duck hunting, and sunburn? This meeting is adjourned.

Specifications

The 1983 Milestone was prepared by the students of Eastern Kentucky University and printed by offset lithography by Delmar Printing Company, Charlotte, North Carolina.

The paper stock is 80 pound Wesvaco Sterling Gloss Enamel.

The cover is an original design skiver, with debossed design, and gold foil stamping.

The standard type face is korinna. Cutlines are set in eight point with one point leading. Body copy is 12 point with two point leading.

Cameras used to photograph activity pictures for both four-color and black and white included Nikon (35 mm) and Hasselblad (2¼x2¼). Lenses used ranged in focal length from 24mm to 500mm. Senior and underclass portraits were photographed by Yearbook Associates, Miller Falls, Massachusetts.

Press run was 7,500 copies.

Special Thanks

There were many people who made contributions to this book in one way or another. Special thanks go to: Gene McLean of The Lexington Herald Leader for his original story "The Making Of A Champion;" Bill Stoess, Becky Alexander, and Greg Whalen of Delmar Publishing for their continued support and Southern hospitality; Larry Bailey for his trust and reassurance; Donald R. Feltner, Vice President of Public Affairs for his continued dedication; Don Rist for his creative suggestions and comic relief; everyone in Public Information; Paul Lambert and his obedient troop of student photographers; contributing photographers Greg Hunt, Eric Schindelbower, and Don Wallbaum; Deana Moore, alias super staffer, for her innovative layout ideas; Melissa Deal for her work on the Academic Section; Kevin Grimm for his cartoon; Sheri Mivelaz and Linda Steele for their input on the Greek Section; Yubi the cat; and the entire cast of Leave It To Beaver.

Editor's Note

Looking back now it seems ludicrous that the most essential part of my life, and most of my friends' lives, was not the education we attained here, but rather the fun we had. Someone once told me that our's is a generation of fun seekers —"If it's not fun forget it!" So it was no surprise that at times Richmond looked like a big nursery school.

There were moments when I couldn't imagine what I would do after leaving. Every student had them; those little darts of fear when you don't know if you can stand being an insurance salesman, or an accountant, or husband-and-father after four years at Eastern.

In the book you just looked at, we had 328 pages in which to portray one year in the life of Eastern well enough so that ten years from now you can pick up your 1983 Milestone and relive not only one year at Eastern, but your entire college experience. I think we did it.
